MMTA QUIZ #8-9 COURSE 2
CORRELATIONS OF NEPTUNE AND URANUS TO LONG-TERM STOCK MARKET CYCLES

1. What is Neptune's degree range of particular signs in which the long-term cycle troughs in the U.S. stock market have unfolded?

When Neptune was between 22° Leo and 5° Virgo, or 17-24° Aquarius, long-term stock market troughs have occurred.

2. What geocosmic correlation is present with Neptune when the stock market makes its secondary low?

Neptune was within 10° of its ingress into Libra (twice) or Aries. In the 1938 secondary low, Neptune was in 19° Virgo, which is 11° from the equinox point of 0° Libra. However, the 1942 secondary low was even closer – only 3° prior to Libra. In the potential secondary low in March 2020, Neptune was 11° from Aires. Neptune will next ingress into Aries in 2025. The 10° orb segment is in effect from 2020-2030.

3. What geocosmic correlation exists between Neptune's signs and long-term cycle crests in the U.S. stock market, especially since 1857?

The long-term crests since 1857 all happened when Neptune was in mutable signs (Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius, Pisces).

4. What is the distance Neptune has moved through the zodiac between a long-term stock market low and its crest?

Neptune moved nearly half of its orbital cycle. In actual degrees, the movement of Neptune ranged from 161° to 194° (a half-cycle would be 180°, which is very close to the mean).

5. What is Uranus's degree range of particular signs in which the long-term cycle troughs in the U.S. stock market have unfolded?

These troughs took place when Uranus was posited between 22° Pisces and 23° Aries.

6. What is the degree range of Uranus in particular signs in which the long-term cycle crests in the U.S. stock market have unfolded?

The upward trend peaked as Uranus transited between 0° Pisces and 10° Aries.

7. Based on these studies of Uranus and Neptune, when is the next long-term cycle low, or secondary low in U.S. stocks due?

2023-2028. Neptune within 10° orb of Aries is 2020-2030. Uranus reversal is at from 23° of one sign through 5° of next sign, which is in effect 2023-2028, so this latter zone is also the overlap period.

8. Based on these studies of Uranus and Neptune, when is the next long-term cycle crest in U.S. stocks due?

At any time now—Uranus is already past 10° Aries, but Neptune remains in Pisces until 2025.
